To celebrate National Poetry Month, the Library was honored to have R. Flowers Rivera read from her collections, Troubling Accents and Heathen. Her work reflects and re-imagines race, gender, class, sexual orientation, and regional identities of the south. This incredible opportunity was made in part by Dr. Heshium Lawrence and the University of Texas at Tyler Bookstore.

Among various other accolades, Ms. Flowers is the 2014 recipient of the Naomi Long Madgett Poetry Award for Heathen, finalist for the Gival Press Prize in Poetry, nomination in Poetry for Troubling Accents, - Mississippi Institute of Arts & Letters.

Following the reading, Ms. Flowers signed copies of her works and answered questions.

Sometimes we have to do something that pushes us to go further. At the start of the Spring, I did that by participating in the Brookshire’s Fresh 15. No, I did not run 15 kilometers. Actually, I did not run at all. What I did was walk (along with 4 colleagues) five kilometers. But, it caused me to push myself further than usual.

When I think about reading, I know that often we find ourselves reading the same type of book, over and over. We tend not to go outside of the reading realm that we enjoy. But when we do, something happens! We find a new genre of reading to enjoy!

When we go outside of our reading zone, we begin to have new experiences and even grow in ways that we never thought we would. This way of thinking connects with the National Library Week’s theme of “Transformation”. So be encouraged to read something you usually wouldn’t, and experience your mind opening up to new possibilities!

“"It is the marriage of the soul with Nature that makes the intellect fruitful, and gives birth to imagination.'’ --- Henry David Thoreau

The Library and the University said goodbye to a dear friend this week, Maurine Genecov Muntz. The Library was dedicated in 1982 in honor of her husband, Robert R. Muntz, and Mrs. Muntz was always interested in the Library. It thrilled her to hear about the changes at the Library and about all the activities that brought us together.

A modest woman, Mrs. Muntz did not seek recognition or accolades for the many good works and charities to which she contributed. Mrs. Muntz was an avid orchid grower and lover of nature. In 2010, she gave the University the gift of the beautiful gardens in front of the Library and was always pleased to see students taking a moment from their studies to reconnect with nature.

Mrs. Muntz was recognized as the first Patriot of the Year in 1982 for her $1.5 million donation to the Robert R. Muntz Library. Over the years, she continued to support the arts at UT Tyler— including a gift for the Fine Arts Complex and other gifts for which she preferred to receive no acknowledgement.

“"It was good to walk into a library again; it smelled like home.”’ — Elizabeth Kostova, The Historian

Faculty & Staff Recognitions

By Vandy Dubre

The Faculty and Staff Publications & Presentations Ceremony took place on February 24, 2016, in the UC Theatre. UT Tyler faculty & staff who made scholarly presentations, wrote an article, book chapter, book, or participated in a significant event in the community during 2015, were recognized at the ceremony. Provost Mirmiran presented the keynote address before each of the 200+ guests were honored.

The viewing before the ceremony was animated. Dr. Sarah Roberts provided jazz music selections, while faculty had the opportunity to speak with their colleagues and see the multitude of UT Tyler scholarly contributions.

For the rest of the month, students were able to view the display in the library, which included a photo and list of the achievements of the faculty or staff member.

WHAT WE’RE DOING...

Famous Librarians

Audre Lorde (1934 - 1992) was a Caribbean-American writer, radical feminist, womanist, lesbian, and civil rights activist. Lorde received a B.A. from Hunter College in 1959 and a master of library science from Columbia University a year later. During the 1960s, she worked as a librarian, becoming the head librarian at the Town School Library from 1966 to 1968.

Sanford Berman (1933-Present) is a radical librarian (cataloger) known for promoting alternative viewpoints in librarianship and acting as a pro-active information conduit to other librarians around the world, mostly via public speaking, voluminous correspondence, and unsolicited “care packages” delivered via the US Postal Service. Will Manley, columnist for the American Library Association (ALA) publication, American Libraries, referred to Berman as a “bibliographic warrior”.

Library Grad and Student Workers

Some of the library’s best resources hail from our own campus. They are our student workers. Without them, we would not be able to provide the level of service needed by our users. This semester’s staff include:

Grad Students
Reference Services: Joseph Watt & Gavin Sanders
University Archives: Mary Elizabeth Smith

Student Workers
Circulation Services: Ki’arra Semien, Savannah Harris, Jennifer Melton & Cree Summerville
Collections Services: Manish Kasu & Chris Omoye

Please join the Library in welcoming this most essential group of students!
Terra Gullings, University Archivist

One of the main functions of the University Archives and Special Collections Department is to preserve and document the history of UT Tyler and its activities. We collect materials that tell stories of how UT Tyler was created, about new programs, staff and student activities, and more. This month we visited the UT Tyler Physical Plant and discovered 15 boxes of news clippings, President’s papers, and documents detailing the Patriot Golf Classic. Most of these boxes contain documents from the 1980s-2000s, and will allow us to better capture UT Tyler’s detailed history. We even found the ceremonial mace used when UT Tyler was still Texas Eastern University, during the late 1970s. The mace is a large wooden staff carried by faculty during commencement. So, if you are ever interested in learning about the history of your University, or have materials that might help tell its history, please stop by the University Archives and Special Collections Department in LIB106!

Contact the Archives at archivist@uttyler.edu or (903) 565-5849.

Even More New Study Space

by Vandy Dubre, Librarian

Along with revamping the third and fourth floors to create a better quiet zone and a more useful spacious third floor social zone, the Library also revamped the second floor Curriculum Materials Library (CML) room or LIB 211. Located on the library second (main) floor past the University President pictures and “Great Cow Mural,” sits the quaint CML room. This room houses the Library’s children’s literature and k-12 textbook collection.

Primarily for the children’s literature classes, this room is also used by education majors and the “fortunate to find it” nursing group. For years it housed rows of books and two large square tables. We received k-12 textbooks from Region 7, but due to the decline of their print textbook program, many of the textbooks became irrelevant due to changes in state testing and age.

So the textbooks were weeded and the empty shelves removed. Tables from before the third floor renovation were repurposed to the CML room which now holds six tables and rolling white boards for social zone study. There is a sign posted which tells when the room is reserved for the children’s literature classes that periodically meet there.

QUIET ZONES—PERIODICALS & LIB 422

Need a quiet place to study? Need to use a computer but also need quiet to concentrate? Well, look no further.

Your Library now has New Quiet Zones to meet your needs.

The Library periodicals room, located on the 4th floor, is now the Quiet Study Zone.

With large tables, comfy chairs, & personal study carrels, there is a space for every need. Handicap accessible doors close the room off from the stairwell noise to make a truly quiet space.

If quiet study with computers is what you are seeking, LIB 422 is your spot.

This room doubles as the library instruction room, but when not in use, is also the quiet computer lab. There is a weekly class schedule posted outside the door.
