Ten Years Ago (August 2003)

University Awarded Federal Grant for Crime Research

The University received a $149,987 Department of Justice Grant to serve as the research partner/crime analyst for the Project Safe Neighborhoods (PSN) initiative. The initiative promoted partnerships among federal, state, and local law enforcement agencies to reduce gun violence across the country. Dr. Peter Phillips, associate criminal justice professor and Dr. Barbara Hart, chair of social sciences and associate criminal justice professor, used grant funds to analyze crime patterns and develop strategies to reduce gun violence in East Texas.

Professors awarded for excellence in teaching

Dr. Joyce Ballard, professor of health and kinesiology, and Dr. Brenda Gilliam, associate professor of special education, received recognition for excellence in teaching. Dr. Ballard received the 2002-03 Chancellor's Council Outstanding Teaching Award and Dr. Gilliam was selected as the 2004 nominee for the Minnie Stevens Piper Foundation Piper Professor.

UT Tyler Business Internship Program Helps Students

The College of Business and Technology announced a major reinvigoration of its internship program after completing a study of the accounting curriculum. Barbara Bass, CPA, served as chair of the study. The University partnered with the East Texas Chapter of CPAs to produce internship best-practices guides for students and sponsoring organizations. Additional changes included raising grade standards and implementing more rigorous documentation practices.

Twenty Years Ago (August 1993)

State Approves $21 Million Budget

The University of Texas System Board of Regents approved a $21 million budget for the 1993-94 fiscal year. The Division of Nursing received the largest budget increase to accommodate state mandate. The Texas Legislature also approved $100,000 for Interactive Video instruction and the Joint Baccalaureate Studies Program. $50,000 was allocated for special student scholarships.

Troy Aikman (standing) and Bill Bates were featured guests at the 1993 UT Tyler Eisenhower Golf Classic.

Interactive Video courses expanded to new campuses

UT Tyler announced partnerships with new East Texas campuses to distribute higher education through the Interactive Video program. In addition to Kilgore College and the Maude Cobb Center in Longview, UT Tyler began offering live video courses through Mexia State School, Panola College in Carthage, and Trinity Valley Community College in Athens. Courses offered for the Fall 1993 semester included Business Law I, American Labor History, American Foreign Policy, Legal and Bioethical Issues in Nursing, and Introduction to School Administration.

Music department receives donation

Annie Lloyd of Henderson donated several thousand classical music recordings to the UT Tyler music department in memory of her son Kenneth. Supplementing the Muntz Library's existing audio holdings, the donation included a diverse collection of opera pieces from across Europe and Russia. The music department made the recordings available to students through on-site listening labs.

In Fall 1973, Tyler State College purchased this small Berta street building for faculty offices.
