UT Tyler Staff Lays Out vision for Year Ahead at Convocation

Dr. Rodney Mabry, president of UT Tyler, told faculty and staff gathered for the annual convocation that the university’s goal was to improve its profile as a place of higher learning. Mabry described UT Tyler as the most important economic influence for growth in East Texas. “One in five students in East Texas is taught by UT Tyler instructors, forty percent of nurses in the area graduate from UT Tyler,” he added.

He said ongoing research taking place at the university provided a $4.5 million boost to the local economy, and the university tied for 15th in the US News and World Report for its first-year masters program the year before. Still, the university was struggling to raise its profile outside the East Texas region. The goal was for UT Tyler to be a strong alternative to UT Austin.

Dr. Mabry added that the University was working to get more funding through the State Legislature, to continue updating and expanding campus facilities. He also urged instructors to stay engaged with their students and talked at length about student retention. Tyler Morning Telegraph August 26, 2008.
